

TruHammer

TCI Hammertone Powder Coatings

Hammertones may not be considered new or unique, but a true hammertone product line that understands the issues and/or problems historical hammertones have caused, is in fact, very unique.

To create a hammertone it must be formulated with a base coating that has a unique reaction when exposed to radiant or convection heat, which creates a hammered effect. This is where most hammertones fall short - neglecting to consider the application window for the powder coater. TruHammer takes the next step and assures the broadest application window, giving the coater the most robust hammertones available. While these challenges still exist, TruHammer keeps them to a minimum, making a more consistent finished product day in and day out.
